Dear friends and colleagues,

The Congress Committee of the 12th European Regional Congress of the International Labour and Employment Relations Association (ILERA) warmly welcomes you to Düsseldorf! We hope you had a pleasant journey to Germany and we very much look forward to meeting you all in person.

The 12th ILERA European Congress comes at a time when changes affecting the institutions, actors and practices of labour relations are widespread. The development of ‘new work’ concepts and disruptive business models present serious challenges for industrial relations systems and social partners. Intensified global trade conflicts and the exit of the United Kingdom from the EU influence such changes in various ways. At the same time, the rise of right-wing populist parties seriously challenges the European idea as well as national democratic institutions.

Against this background, we hope to have set the ground for three days of lively discussions at the Heinrich Heine University in Düsseldorf. The multitude of high-profile plenaries, workshops and parallel sessions will provide you with ample opportunity to dig deeper into such pressing questions as how to bring about a Social Europe and effective labour market institutions, as well as stable collective bargaining systems, improved working and HRM practices for all.

Joining with friends and colleagues from all over the world, we are looking forward to a rich exchange of ideas linking the different academic disciplines to renew the field of Industrial Relations. Let’s open new possibilities for collaboration beyond national borders and disciplines.

We wish you a very pleasant stay in the Rhineland!

Best wishes,

Your Congress Committee of the ILERA European Congress 2019

VENUE

The ILERA European Congress 2019 takes place at Heinrich Heine University (HHU) Düsseldorf (building 23.01).

Directions
The university campus is a small town within a town which is why it has many stops for buses and trams. There is a good connection to the main train station by public transport. Both the underground line U79 and the tram line 704 go from the main train station direct to the university.

The underground line U79 will take you to Uni Ost/Botanischer Garten (University East/Botanical Garden). The tram line 704 will take you to Uni Nord/Christophstraße (University North/Christoph Street). Both connections will take approximately 15 minutes from the main train station to the university campus. For prices, a public transportation map and further information please visit the website of the local transport agency Rheinbahn. https://www.rheinbahn.com/Seiten/default.aspx

Registration
Please go to the registration desk when you first arrive at the Congress centre to collect your name badge and congress materials. The registration desk is situated on the ground floor of building 23.01. The registration desk will be open at 8.30am (Thursday to Saturday).

Important note: if you have not paid for your registration you must make payment before you can participate in sessions and collect your congress materials. For on-site registrations during the conference, we will provide an Internet access and computer for you to make online registration. No cash payment will be accepted when registering on-site.

For urgent matters please contact the registration desk or send an email: ilera2019@giraweb.de

How to read room numbers at the Heinrich Heine University?
You may think what is printed underneath you session or workshop number is an IP-address. It is not! In fact, it is your room number.

Example:
The first four digits (“2301”) identify the building, your room is located in. For the Congress we use three buildings (2301, 2302, 2303) which are connected to each other.

Digits four and five (“01”) indicate the floor-level, where you find your room. “01”-rooms are located on the first floor, “U1”-rooms in the basement. The final two digits (“22”) indicate the room number.

ABOUT THIS PROGRAMME

The Congress programme includes plenaries, parallel sessions and workshops. In order to limit scheduling conflicts, sessions and workshops do not overlap with plenary sessions.

Presenters should be at the session room at least 10 minutes prior to the start of their session. The total number of presentations per session is set at three or, in exceptional cases, at four. Each presenter’s allocated presentation time will vary according to the number of presentations for each session:

- 3 presenters: 18 min for each presentation + 25 min for open floor discussion at the end of the session
- 4 presenters: 15 min for each presentation + 20 min for open floor discussion at the end of the session
- Workshops with more than 4 presenters: Please contact your workshop organiser

Please use your time efficiently and comply with the instructions of your chair which are designed to help us begin and end sessions on time. Most importantly, be considerate of your fellow speakers. They also need the time allotted to them to present their paper.

The programme is organised around four thematic tracks:

- Track 1: Social Europe: Equality and Poverty
- Track 2: Regulation of Labour: Actors, Institutions and Law
- Track 3: Workers’ Voice and Industrial Democracy
- Track 4: Human Resources, Quality of Work and Digitalisation
The idea of Social Europe is widely associated with strong labour market institutions and employment relations which largely contribute to comparatively high levels of social protection and low inequality. Trust in European institutions and the commitment to build a better future are not necessarily taken for granted as the rise of populist parties in many European countries seems to challenge the European idea. In addition, during recent decades Europe has been faced by growing social and economic disparities both within and between regions and states but also by persistent gaps between sexes as well as between migrant and native workers. Although the reasons for growing inequalities are complex and manifold, changes in labour market institutions and the power relations of the social partners are widely regarded as one major cause for this development. Track 1 tackles the following issues:

- Influence of labour market institutions and employment relations on the different dimensions of inequality (for example: income, wealth, training and employment opportunities)
- The impact of non-standard employment and precarious work
- Contributions of social partners to a reduction of inequality and to a more inclusive economic development
- Employment relations and macroeconomic performance
- New forms and concepts of labour market regulation and employment relations at European level
- EU economic governance and industrial relations
- Mobility of labour in Europe
- Contentious politics in Europe: protest, opposition, and mobilisation

Europe is the origin of a rich variety of different concepts of industrial and workplace democracy. For decades the incompatibility of these traditions was more an obstacle than a fertile ground for a strong European representation of the workers’ voice. Meanwhile considerable progress has been made regarding workers’ participation in Europe as well as beyond. Yet democracy is threatened at different levels and from different sides, in particular by the rise of authoritarian political movements and new forms of racism, sexism, classism and religious fundamentalism that also affect workplace relations. At the same time new technologies lead to new challenges as well as opportunities for democratic participation. Against this background we want to discuss the future of democratic participation at local, national, European and international levels. Track 3 tackles the following issues:

- Concepts and traditions: Industrial democracy, industrial citizenship, ‘autogestion’, co-determination (Mitbestimmung) and beyond
- Debate about European minimum standards for board-level employee representation, workers’ voice in transnational companies: European Works Councils, employee involvement in European Companies (SE), International Framework Agreement
- Union busting in international comparison
- Voluntary forms of employee participation
- Direct and representative participation
- Economic outcomes of workers’ participation
- Fragmentation of the workforce as a challenge for democratic participation
- New solidarities and new forms of participation
- Gender and diversity in labour unions and works councils

The past decade has seen a growing impact at the state level, nationalist political parties with divergent ideas. In addition, during recent decades Europe has been faced by growing social and economic disparities both within and between regions and states but also by persistent gaps between sexes as well as between migrant and native workers. Although the reasons for growing inequalities are complex and manifold, changes in labour market institutions and the power relations of the social partners are widely regarded as one major cause for this development. Track 2 tackles the following issues:

- The relationship between law and other forms of regulation and between ‘soft’ and ‘hard’ law
- Conflicts caused by the relationship between national and supra-national labour law
- Enforcement of labour regulation – enforcing institutions and actors; strategies for transnational enforcement of labour rights
- The role of courts and tribunals as actors in labour relations
- Development of actors, trade unions and employer organisations, at national and EU level
- Transnational regulation of labour relations and the regulation of cross-border mobility
- Nationalist party policies and the regulation of labour
- Regulation of the digital economy and the role of digital multinationals

HRM is a continuously changing practice – not only in the firm, but also in inter-organisational relations between firms or between firms and (self-employed) individuals. As a consequence, we are experiencing a massive change in practices of HRM, in the respective constellations of actors in HRM and employment relations. A growing digitalisation of (multinational) firms as well as their business relationships, new business models based on digital technologies (e.g. crowdwork) leading to a ‘gig economy’ and the impacts of the use of artificial intelligence on the quality of work, HRM practices and employment relations. Track 4 tackles the following issues:

- HRM, quality of work and working conditions
- Consequences of digitalisation for HRM policy fields and employment relations
- New developments in HRM, for example talent analytics or automatic decision making
- New practices in the policy fields of HRM in and beyond the single firm
- Intermittent work
- HRM for highly-skilled workers and low-skilled workers

The regulation of labour is a dynamic process subject to power relations in public policies and collective bargaining. This track aims at gathering contributions on the policies, the practice and enforcement of labour legislation and collective agreements.

The past decade has seen a growing impact at the supranational level as European policies have aimed at influencing labour and employment policies in the member states. Simultaneously, at member state level, nationalist political parties with divergent policies on labour institutions but similar opposition to the IR system by digital multinationals. Track 2 tackles the following issues:

- Conflicts caused by the relationship between national and supra-national labour law
- Enforcement of labour regulation – enforcing institutions and actors; strategies for transnational enforcement of labour rights
- The role of courts and tribunals as actors in labour relations
- Development of actors, trade unions and employer organisations, at national and EU level
- Transnational regulation of labour relations and the regulation of cross-border mobility
- Nationalist party policies and the regulation of labour
- Regulation of the digital economy and the role of digital multinationals

- The regulation of the digital economy and the role of digital multinationals

How to read room numbers

You may think what is printed underneath you session or workshop number is an IP-address. It is not! In fact, it is your room number.

Example: 2303.01.22

The first four digits ("2303") identify the building, your room is located in. For the Congress we use three buildings (2301, 2302 and 2303) which are connected to each other. Digits four and five ("01") indicate the floor-level, where you find your room. "01"-rooms are located on the first floor, "U1"-rooms in the basement. The final two digits ("22") indicate the room number.
